History of the Institution	Prakash College of Education was established in June 1961. Before this, there was a dearth of B.Ed. colleges in Gujarat state. There were three to four colleges in Gujarat which provided the teacher education at that time. Prakash College of Education is run by a public trust, known as Prakash College of Education Trust. This since its inception is devoted to the cause of improvement of education and particularly secondary education through teacher education. The purpose of this institution is to prepare graduate teachers by providing qualitative teacher education. Functioning of this institution is controlled by various agencies. Primarily the institution is controlled by the Prakash College of Education Trust. The trust manages the financial matters of the Institution and provides for appropriate infrastructure in institution so that college smoothly function to achieve its goals and objectives. The other controlling agencies for the college are Gujarat University and State Department of Education. Gujarat University enacts academic functions of the college. The university prescribes the nature of courses and relevant curriculum. It also prescribes the requirement to be fulfilled by the teacher trainees before they can take up the examination. The State Department of Education is related in the running of the Institution in more than one ways. Firstly, it controls and satisfies the financial needs of Institution. The department provides financial grant to the Institution. Secondly, the department assigns to the Institution some periodical tasks designed to train in-service teachers. For newer practices to be undertaken by the Institution, Institution co-operates with the State Department of Education to carry out special training programmes. The most important agency for the Institution is practice teaching schools. The Institution and practicing schools have two-way relations. Practice teaching schools co-operate with Institution by offering facilities for various teacher training programmes such as stray lessons, Block teaching, and internship programme. Reciprocally the Institution helps practice teaching schools in matters resolving their day to day academic difficulties. The Institution also guides schools in adopting, designing, implementing and evaluating some special programmes such as science fair , educational and vocational guidance, sports day, etc. The principal task of the Institution is to prepare teachers for imparting quality education. Quality education can be made possible by removing and resolving difficulties faced by the schools and Institution. To do this Institution can periodically survey the difficulties faced by the schools. After spotting out the difficulties can undertake programmes to resolve these
